Critic vs. Coach

One small practice for a harsh inner critic — same standard, kinder voice.

One small practice to try this week: pick one harsh thought from this week, write it down, then rewrite it the way a supportive coach would say it — same standard, kinder voice.

Example — Critic: “I always mess up presentations.” Coach: “Presentations are hard for me right now, and I can prepare one clear opening line.”

What the critic said	What the coach would say

After the week — look back at your rows:

What changed when the voice got kinder?

One standard I want to keep, and how I'll hold it kindly: